Educators Seek Tech College

T. DeWitt Evans, Appomattox School Board chairman, is among the educators of this area currently considering ways and means to secure a state supported technical college in Lynchburg.

High school juniors in this area will be asked in the next two weeks what their future educational plans are. This survey is the first step to be taken toward getting a state supported technical college here.

Robert C. Mark, chairman of the Technical Colleg e Committee for this area stated recently that schools superintend e n ts from Lynchburg and Appomattox, Amherst, Bedford and Campbell counties will soon see that high school juniors are surveyed in the next two weeks.

Mark said a future brief survey will be conducted with the cooperation of parents.

Another survey-sponsored by the Technical College Committee and several other organizations — will be aimed at valleating the area's projected manpower needs in technical skills and professions (as dental technicians and practical nurses) a technical college could support.

The proposed college would serve Lynchburg and the area counties of Bedford, Campbell, Appomattox and Amherst.

To Be In Parade

Linda Carole Beard, Virginia Farm Queen for 1964-65, will appear in the Miss Appomattox Parade here Saturday, April 3 at 2:30 p.m. A graduate of Patrick Henry High School, Linda Carole appeared at county fairs both in 1964 and 1965. She is representing the Virginia Department of Agriculture at agricultural meetings around the state. A second runner-up in the Farm Queen Contest in 1962, Linda Carole was named Miss Hanover in 1962-64, a princess in the 15th Annual National Tobacco Festival, a finalist in the 1964 Miss Richmond Pageant, and has won several other beauty awards. Appomattox Red Cross Chapter Makes Appeal For Funds

The annual Red Cross Drive for funds is on in Appomattox County with a quota of $2,000.00 set for the local chapter. The local chapter retains approximately 53 per cent of all funds collected to finance local services, while the remainder is remitted to the National Chapter to render its many services to those in need.

Chapter chairman, William A. Hunter, states that it has been many years since the local county chapter has met its fund quota, consequently it has been operating with a deficit from year to year for several years. Hunter says he would like to impress upon the people of the county the need for funds to continue the important Red Cross services rendered to its citizens. It takes approximately $500.00 to pay for the county chapter's participation in the Red Cross Blood Program alone, which is so important to its citizens both from a physical and financial standpoint. Aside from the importance of having blood available when needed, if the county residents had to pay for the blood used by its patients in a year it would amount to more than $5000.00.

Red Cross Home Service with Mrs. Don Moses as chairman for many years, has rendered a most valuable service for men and women of the Armed Services and their families. Other important services rendered are first aid instruction and disaster relief. To carry on these services the chapter needs funds so when a solicitor calls on you give generously.

Hunter says since he has been unable to get fund solicitors in some sections of the county he would appreciate voluntary contributions sent to Mrs. Jean Legrand, Red Cross Fund Treas. at The Fidelity National Bank or to him at The Farmers National Bank Join up — Join In and help others.

Bank Displays Model Of Cannon

The county's game warden has made a scale model of a Civil War cannon which is capable of being fired.

Charles D. Torrence's replica is on display at Farmer's National Bank In Appomattox.

Torrence made his cannon at night in the vocational agriculture shop at Appomattox High School during the past two months.

Assisting him was Holmesy Inge, who fashioned the 13-inch long barrel out of a two-inch round solid brass stock.

The material used in making the cannon replica other than brass was black walnut wood.

Torrence said his cannon was built on a scale of one-to-five inches, using as a model the cannon in the courthouse yard here. The replica weights about 25 pounds.

Torrence said when the ramrods have been made, the cannon can be fired.

Replicas of Civil War cannons are being built also by Luther Bourne, chief ranger at Holiday Lake State Park, and David Spiggle.

Famous Painting On Cover Of New County History

The well - known painting "Let Us Have Peace" by J.L.G. Ferris (also known as "Lee's Surrender at Appomattox") is the cover picture for a new history of Appomattox County. Author of the new book, expected to go on sale here by April 9, is Mrs. Vara Smith Stanley, native and life-long resident of the county.

Mrs. Stanley says that Ferris' painting showing General Lee and General Grant in the McLean House parlor exchanging a handclasp of friendship, is a meaningful symbol of the entire idea of her book. Mrs. Stanley says that her chief purpose in preparing the book is to stress the need for peace and brotherhood, that General Robert E. Lee's own words were, "Let us have peace."

Appomattox, she says, as the keystone around which a "new peace" and brotherhood was built, is an historic landmark in the nation's history, and she feels that the 100th anniversary of the meeting of Lee and Grant here is a significant time to produce a new history of the county.

The 100 page booklet will have quite a few photographs of county leaders, past and present, and includes a number of photographs never before published.

The artist who painted the cover picture, J.L.G. Ferris, is considered by many authorities to be the foremost artist on scenes of American history. There are almost seventy of his paintings in one collection in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. Mr. Ferris was born in Philadelphia in 1863. His father before him was an artist. His mother was a sister of the Appomattox Civil War Centennial Committee, with committees from the civic clubs of the county, will meet at the Farmers National Bank. This is the last meeting scheduled before the planned commemoration, so it is most important for all persons involved to attend. Preceeding the 8:00 meeting, the Centennial Committee will meet at 7:30.
